

Operations Consultancy Service

Sometimes when we are on site, we see clients who, over the years, have let their database structure change without any controls, having a knock-on effect on their ability to report and generate meaningful data.

Have a member of the Harlequin team support you in analysing the structure of your software and work with you in re-defining the set-up of reference files to work in line with your operations.

Key Features

- A tailored service, where we will undergo a full audit of your operations and system structure.
- Advice and guidance on changes needed in the system structure to meet your operational requirements.
- Gain an understanding on security access rights and change management to ensure structure of site is appropriately governed in the future

Extra options can then include Harlequin:

- making global changes to your system structure of reference files to meet these objectives.
- providing tailored reports for your specific site needs.
- writing process guides for your teams to follow.
